

Folkestone is situated on the Kent coast, and is easily accessible by car, coach or train with direct routes from London and all major towns in Kent and East Sussex.

If you want to stay in Folkestone whilst on your course the town offers plenty of choices for accommodation from small family run bed and breakfast guest houses to large luxurious hotels.

Folkestone also offers plenty of places to eat and drink. Whatever kind of food and atmosphere you prefer, you will be happy with the choice on offer.

Not to be missed among seaside sights and scenes of a different kind are Folkestone's Leas promenade, a mile of manicured lawns with superb views over the Channel to France, the fishing harbour, Sunny Sands beach (blue-flagged and popular with families) and the Lower Leas Coastal Park (rock pools and adventure playground for children).

- discover the fascinating and ancient art of mosaic making
- day long courses suitable for both beginners and more advanced students
- learn in a small group in a relaxed and friendly atmosphere
- courses run in the picturesque seaside town of Folkestone

If you would like to learn how to make mosaics in a relaxed and friendly atmosphere, Jo offers day courses in her Folkestone studio. To ensure all students receive adequate personal tuition these courses are limited to a maximum of six students per course.

Courses run from 10.30 in the morning to 4.30 in the afternoon, giving plenty of time to design and learn the techniques of mosaic making. For course dates please see the separate insert.

Included in the price of the course are easy to follow course notes, all materials and personal tuition.

The mosaic shop is stocked with all the items needed to make your own mosaics, as well as a gallery featuring Jo's own work.

Whilst on the course you will get 10% discount on kits, tools and tiles stocked in the shop.

Gift vouchers are available so that you can give a course as a present to a friend or family member.

Jo's studio is part of Folkestone's Creative Foundation and is situated in the heart of Folkestone's creative quarter, only a short walk from the picturesque harbour up the steep cobbled Old High Street.

"The whole process of mosaic making is absorbing: I'm not sure whether it requires more patience than other media, but I have noticed that I can lose all sense of time when working on a mosaic. When I think I've worked for about an hour, often two or three have passed. It's also hard to stop; I have a tendency to place 'just one more piece'"
Jo Letchford

Jo Letchford is a trained artist and teacher, she has been making mosaics for many years and her work has appeared in many books and magazines all around the world. Her inspiration and ideas come from life, from images that she finds appealing and from her love of colour, pattern and texture. She particularly enjoys seeing the pleasure her students get from discovering and developing their talents for mosaic making.
